Funeral Service Held For Rev. Walters

It was with profound sadness that the parishioners of St. Thomas Church and St. Mary's Irma, together with many friends, and a number of his partners in the cloth gathered in the last respects to the late Reverend Robert Kenneth Walters, who passed away at the University hospital in Edmonton on Sunday morning, Feb. 17.

Mr. Walters was 43 years of age at the time of his death, and was a native of Wales. He came to Canada about 25 years ago and was for about fifteen years employed with the CPR during that time he took an active part in church work, and handled services as lay readers. Later he entered the ministry as a full time professional.

During the three years Mr. Walters spent in Wainwright he was active in not only the expansion and work of the Church, but also in public life. He was a member of the local school board, a member of the scout and cub committee, chaplain of the Legion and a member of the Reserve Army.

Officiating at the funeral services which were held on Thursday afternoon, February 21, at 2 p.m. was the Rev. W. W. Buxton of St. Peter's Church in Edmonton, an old classmate of Rev. Walters. He was assisted by Dean Sparling of All Saints, Edmonton. Rev. L. M. Watts of St. Faith's, Edmonton, represented Emmanuel College of Saskatoon. Rev. Peckover of Lloydminster represented the Diocese of Saskatchewan. Others attending were Col. Wilkes of the Army Camp; Canon Teape of Vermilion; Rev. Cathcart of Clondonald; Rev. U. of Ashmont; Rev. V. Coles of Tofteld; Rev. Williams of Fort Saskatchewan; Rev. J.C. Clement of Manville and Rev. D. W. Ellway of Edgerton.

A number of organizations attended groups, and occupied reserved seats. Among these were the W.A. members, Park Branch W.A., Irma parishioners, the Army and the Legion. This resulted in a shortage of seating accommodation and many attending were unable to gain admittance to the building.

The choir was in full attendance for the service, and Mr. Oliver Griffiths officiated at the organ. Hymns were two of Mr. Walters' favorites: "Jerusalem my Happy Home" and "The King of Love my Shepherd is."

At the close of the service, which was beautifully conducted, the choir retired singing "Nunc Dimittis."

Mr. Walters leaves to mourn his loss his loving wife, two children, Mary age 2 and Brownay age 5 months and his mother, Mrs. Walters Sr.

Honorary pallbearers were: Messrs. H. Targett, T. Withnell Sr., N. McQuarry, Geo. Tindall Jr., H. Smart, W. Milner. Pallbearers: Messrs. Dr. G. M. Asch, T. Lissimore, F.T. Thurston, J. Humphries, R. Laycock and J. Roberts.

Interment was made in Wainwright cemetery where members of the Army formed a guard of honor.

Many beautiful floral tributes, and many donations to the Walters Memorial Fund, the Cancer Fund, and the Irma Memorial Fund paid their mute tribute to the esteem in which Mr. Walters was held.

It would be appreciated if any further donations to the St. Mary's Walters Memorial Fund be handed to either Mr. F. T. Thurston, Mr. E. H. Targett or Mr. Ross McFarland Jr.

27 Rinks Competing In Mixed Spiel

The Irma Curling Club is holding its annual mixed spiel this week with 27 rinks in competition. This is always a popular event and makes a grand finale for our curling year. At time of writing the weatherman is smiling almost too tenderly, on this happy occasion, but so far the ice is holding up well and the promise of slightly cooler weather ahead will probably bring all three competitions to a glorious finish. B. of M. to Have New Service

Customers of the Bank of Montreal's local branch will soon be receiving speedier and more convenient service. This will be made possible by the installation of a new ledger-keeping system, which will revolve around what is known as a combination posting machine.

This complex mechanism will automatically record all withdrawals, deposits, balances, dates and other pertinent data. Current-account customers will not require passbooks, and thus be free from time-consuming delays while passbooks are being made up, as at present. Instead, they will regularly receive complete statements, with debits, credits and balances concisely set out for quick reference. These statements will always be instantly available. The machine will also take care of the savings department, and all withdrawals and deposits will be mechanically entered in the bank's records. Savings passbooks, however, will still be handwritten.

Thus, when the new equipment goes into operation, the ancient and honorable—but laborious—practice of keeping ledgers up to date by hand will become a thing of the past.

Mr. G. Roy Barnhill, manager of the B of M here, is much pleased with this new development at his branch. "With the help of this equipment, we will be able to provide much faster and more convenient service for our customers," he declared.

Immigration Policy

MOST CANADIANS ARE AWARE that the population has increased greatly through immigration in the years since the war. Actually more than 500,000 immigrants have come to Canada since 1946. Of these, 193,775 were from the United Kingdom, 108,000 from Northern Europe, nearly 50,000 from the United States and 208,246 from other countries. It has recently been announced that in the first eleven months of 1951, 174,000 immigrants arrived in Canada from other countries. This was the largest number to come in any one year since 1913 when there was a record total of 400,000 immigrants. It was expected that in 1951 the number would reach about 150,000, but that figure was exceeded, and a further 20,000 residents of Great Britain were awaiting passage to Canada at the end of the year.

Have Filled Many Needs

Many of the newcomers are skilled workers, some having been brought here by industries to fill needs for personnel in plants and factories. Others have come to work on construction projects, to go on the land or to find work in the cities. Whatever their callings, these new citizens have helped to swell Canada's population to 14,000,000 and have filled many needs for additional workers across the country. Immigration authorities report that the majority of these people travelled to this country on their own resources or with the help of the Canadian government under a program inaugurated to encourage immigration to Canada.

Fit Into Life Here

Some interesting facts regarding Canada's post-war immigration policy are contained in the last edition of the Canada Year Book. The policy is summed up as being "to ensure the careful selection and permanent settlement in Canada of such immigrants as can be absorbed advantageously into the national economy." There is growing need for skilled workers in Canada's expanding industries and on the farms, and it is expected that there will again be a large number of immigrants entering Canada in the coming year. Arrangements have already been made to provide facilities for air and sea transportation for many from the United Kingdom. No estimates have yet been given for the coming year, but the present general policy will be continued and no doubt a large number of new citizens will be absorbed into the life of the country as the year progresses. The last great period of immigration, which took place in the years just before the First World War, was at a time of great expansion in Canada and it would appear that the high rate of immigration at the present time is also accompanying a period of rapid development, perhaps greater than that which took place in the early years of the present century.

Big Milk Shortage Feared By 1955

EDMONTON.—A top Canadian dairyman said that if the trend toward reduced dairy production continues until 1955 Canada will short 1,000,000,000 pounds of milk or the production of at least 300,000 cows in that year.

Erie Kitchen of Woodstock, Ont., secretary-manager of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, gave this estimate at the convention of the Alberta Dairywomen's Association which opened here.

Mr. Kitchen said Canada has fallen from its position as a large exporter of dairy production to the point where last year "we just produced enough for our own needs."

He blamed unfavorable financial returns and said this is leading farmers to sell their cattle at current high beef prices.

"I'm a self-made man, that's what I am—a self-made man," he said.

"You knocked off work too soon," came a quiet voice from the corner.

"How is it that you are late this morning?" the clerk was asked by his employers.

"I overslept," was the reply.

"What? Do you sleep at home as well?" inquired the employer.

Mrs. Dumbly was waiting to be served in the shoe shop. Presently a girl assistant approached her.

"What size shoe do you wear, madam?" she inquired.

"Well," said Mrs. Dumbly, "I bought size four last time."

The girl looked puzzled. "Yes, madam, I remember," she replied; "but you're buying this pair for yourself, aren't you?"

"I understand you have a very economical wife."

"Oh, yes. We have to go without practically everything I need."

The doctor came out of the bedroom to the anxious wife. "Frankly," he said, "I don't like the way your husband looks at all."

"I don't either, doc," the wife said. "But he's nice to the kids."

A small child was explaining to her younger brother that it was wrong to work on Sunday.

"But, what about policemen?" said the boy. "They have to work on Sunday. Don't they go to heaven?"

"Of course not," replied his sister. "They're not needed there."

Farmers' Civil Defence Job

OTTAWA.—Civil defence officials say Canadian farmers and residents of rural areas have as "big a job" in the nation's civil defence set-up as city dwellers.

The people of "Canada's open spaces" will be called upon to do three main jobs in event of war.

(1) Take care of evacuees and injured from bombed cities.

(2) Help nearby cities to recover from air raids.

(3) Stop enemy agents from destroying or damaging crops.

"Rural areas may be relatively immune to bombing, but they can expect trouble just as devastating in its effects as any that cities may suffer," the civil defence experts said.

Old-Timer Recalls Days Of Wild And Woolly West

HAMILTON.—The wild and woolly west was never as wild and woolly as it is pictured in the movies, says Jim Firky, one of the last surviving Canadian pony express riders. At 93, Uncle Jim, as he is affectionately known to his neighbors, likes to recall the many years he spent out west as a young man. He especially likes to reminisce about his pony express days.

Those were the days when he used to carry the mail from Fort Qu'Appelle to Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, a 600-mile round trip which took two weeks on horseback.

Most of the time the trip was uneventful he says. There was a change of horses every 50 miles and no particular trouble with the Indians. However, things were different during the Riel uprising.

On one occasion he had reached Humboldt, his halfway mark, and was betting out for Batchoke where

Louis Riel and his followers were encamped, when he met up with an army scout. The scout warned him about rebels and they both turned around and headed back for Humboldt.

They had gone only a little way when four rebels appeared from no where and took after them. "We whipped our horses and slowly pulled away, but I can still see those bullets kicking up dust around us," says Firky.

During the Riel disturbances the army carried the mails from Humboldt west, after Firky took it that far.

Before riding for the pony express, Firky worked on the express run between Qu'Appelle and Fort Qu'Appelle, a distance of 21 miles. He was on that run two years before going to the pony express.

Charles Assumes String Of Titles

LONDON.—Prince Charles, at three years and two months of age, assumes a string of titles with the accession of his mother to the throne.

As first-born son of the sovereign, he becomes Duke of Cornwall in the peerage of England.

Other titles which devolve on him are Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Prince and Great Steward of Scotland.

Although the chubby little prince automatically becomes heir apparent to the throne, he will not become Prince of Wales immediately. This must wait until his mother decides to invest him with the title.

Princess Margaret would act as regent should a regency become necessary during the minority of Prince Charles.

The altar stone on which Canada's "Book of Remembrance" listing war dead rests at Ottawa was presented by the British government.

Grain Drying Crews May Enter Canada

OTTAWA.—U.S. grain drying crews may bring their equipment into Canada duty free until June 30, 1952. National revenue department officials said.

An order has gone out from the department to customs officials at ports of entry in western Canada announcing that because of the damp grain situation on the prairies, drying equipment and crews would be allowed to enter Canada under temporary admission orders, without a deposit or bond.

Department officials also indicated that any farmers who brought commercial grain dryers into Canada earlier this winter under the government's pro-rata duty plan, will now be eligible to have any duty they paid, refunded.

Last Nov. 21, Hon. J. McCann, revenue minister, outlined a plan in the commons, whereby commercial dryers could be brought in by individual farmers on a six-month temporary basis, by paying one-sixtieth of the duty ordinarily payable, for each month the dryer remained in Canada. Minimum payment was $25 in each case, and the understanding was that the dryers were being loaned or rented, not purchased outright.

It was learned that the cabinet later changed its views about this, and because of the seriousness of the situation are now prepared to consider remitting any duty which may have been paid by any farmer under the above plan. The revenue department has no record of how many dryers were brought in under the pro-rata duty scheme.

The Family Allowance Administration said Canadians with children under 16 years of age apparently still have a great deal of their ancestors' wanderlust. Approximately 36,000 of the 1,900,000 families receiving family allowance cheques report changes of address each month.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

NOT AGGRESSIVE

By RUTH K. KENT

RAMONA rushed into the trailer and grabbed the smoking frying pan from the tall young man and threw it into the yard. "Goodness, you only drove in fifteen minutes ago and you're about to burn up the trailer camp," she gasped. "What was that? A shoe sole?"

"No ma'am, it's an egg. It's my supper. That is... it was," he looked wistfully at the charred fragment on the ground.

Another helpless customer, Ramona thought. But a good-looking one, at last.

"I'm sorry," he said as the smoke cleared enough for Ramona to see how blue his eyes were. "You see, mother and I are driving across the continent. This afternoon she decided to continue by train so I'm taking my time. She always did the cooking," he explained.

"Why didn't you ask mother or me to help?" Ramona asked as she set out his supper.

He smiled. "I'm not aggressive, I guess."

No, he certainly wasn't, Ramona thought. "Think you can wash the dishes without cutting your finger?" she asked.

"I can manage," he assured her. He reached into his pocket. "How much do you charge?"

"Charge?" she shouted. "To gods!" She stumbled from the trailer and ran across the lawn with her mother. A few raindrops were falling and they mingled with her tears.

"What's up?" her mother asked.

"He tried to fry an egg," Ramona said, "the stuck-up ass!"

"He has nice eyes. Good-looking, too," Mrs. Stevens closed the windows. "We're in for a storm."

Ramona shivered. She undressed and crawled into bed and pulled the covers over her head. Not aggressive, she thought. No, he wasn't even awake. He was stupid. Lightning flared and thunder surrounded the cabin and Ramona's knees shook so that the cot creaked.

Then her mother was shaking her. "Wake up, dear."

"How could anybody sleep?" Ramona peeked from under the covers.

"Get dressed. Someone's out on the lake in a rowboat. We'll have to take the launch out. Hurry!"

"Not in this storm. You know I'm scared..."

Mrs. Stevens was helping Ramona dress. "Mrs. Stevens closed the windows. He was stupid. Lightning flared and thunder surrounded the cabin and Ramona's knees shook so that the cot creaked."

Proving It's No Longer A Man's World

Pictured at the wheel of one of the huge machines for which she is "salesman," Mrs. E. M. Vye, (left), has proved that a woman can handle what is usually considered strictly a man's job. Hired by a Calgary firm 11 years ago to maintain contacts with customers for heavy machinery while members of the regular sales crew were in the armed forces, Mrs. Vye proved herself so capable that her services were retained at the war's end.

REGINA.—More American cars entered Saskatchewan during 1951 than in any other year, according to figures compiled by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

A bureau of publications release reported the 1951 figure was 16,758, about seven per cent. higher than 1950's 5,715.

Year-end figures for bus, train and air travel are not yet available. However, to the end of September, rail and bus traffic was slightly down from the previous year, with air travel into the province substantially higher.

In Marblehead, Mass., apparently the men who stole Elmer Davis' car don't smoke. All that was found of the car was the body and two ashtrays. Removed by the thieves were: Engine, wheels, drive shaft, transmission, seats, dashboard, spare tire, battery, wiring, lights and accessories.

Recent drought and bush fires in Queensland, Balcatta, Australia, have forced foxes to turn vegetarian. Foxes have been seen eating "mosses" on farms.

A Bronx, New York, grand jury making an inspection tour of Rikers Island prison looked with some amazement at an advertising poster on the wall of the prison library. It suggested: "Fly to Bermuda."

Canada Is Great Industrial Country

WINNIPEG.—The New York Times says that the rise of the Canadian dollar to full parity with the American dollar was not just another fluctuation on the foreign exchange market, but an accomplishment, "well merited by the facts. Economically, it represented a well-justified recognition of the enormous productive gains made by our great northern neighbor," the Times says in an editorial. "... from an overwhelming agricultural country Canada has been transformed into one of the great industrial countries of the world."

Market, Prices For Wheat To Be Good

OTTAWA.—A sharp reduction in world supplies of wheat will save the Canadian growers top prices and even a premium on exports for the next several months.

Federal grain experts said Canada may even have to ship some wheat to Argentina, a country normally considered one of the big four exporters. On the basis of present estimates, the Argentine will have no wheat to ship abroad this year.

"The situation is going to be tight for the next several months," a bureau of statistics official said. "It's a good situation for the countries like Canada that have wheat to sell. Importers will have to pay the top international wheat agreement price and a premium for anything they want to buy over I.W.A. quotas."

The official was commenting on a D.B.S. survey of the world wheat situation which said supplies on Jan. 1 in the four major exporting countries were only 1,021,000,000 bushels, 10 per cent. below the figure for Jan. 1, 1951.

Canada is the only country of the four which has more wheat on hand than it had a year ago. The United States and Australia show substantial reductions, and Argentina may have no wheat to export in place of the 98,000,000 bushels on hand at the start of last year.

Under the international wheat agreement, Canada has a guaranteed market for 232,900,000 bushels this year, and up to Jan. 22, more than half of the quota had been taken up by exporters. The 1951 crop was estimated at 598,800,000 bushels, but 28 per cent.—150,000,000 bushels—was still unharvested at the year-end because of snow-covered fields.

At the start of 1952, the U.S. supply was reported at 456,000,000 bushels compared with 639,000,000 at the start of 1951. Australian supplies were 101,000,000 bushels at the start of 1952, compared with 134,000,000 bushels at the start of 1951, the bureau said. The Argentine supply was listed with an official "nil" for the first of 1952, compared with 98,000,000 bushels a year earlier.

To Seek Exemption From Taxes On Some Farm Equipment

WINNIPEG.—A petition seeking exemption of some farm equipment from taxes and duty will be forwarded to Ottawa by the Canadian Federation of Farm Equipment dealers.

Mel Cunningham of Red Deer, Alta., president, announced the move on conclusion of the group's annual convention here. He said exemption will be sought on "certain farm equipment, accessories and attachments on which the Canadian farmer pays unnecessary taxes and duty."

He said the cost of doing business is out of all proportion to the volume of sales. A recent survey showed that dealers' net operating profits were less than 4.4 per cent.

Increased freight rates and rising costs of doing business would undoubtedly reduce profits below that figure.

Canada is Fourth Ranking World Trader

Despite her relatively small population, Canada is one of the world's major trading nations and is fourth ranking exporter and importer. Yet this country has only 0.6 per cent of the world's population. For some years previous to 1951 Canada ranked third in exports as well as in imports. Then the Canadian totals were only slightly more than those of France. But in 1951 the gap between the trade of both countries widened in favour of France, although the trade of both continued to increase considerably. Canada stands first in exports and imports per capita when compared with the ten major trading countries. Belgium, which is second, is still far behind Canada. The per capita trade of Canada is three times as great as that of the United States. In the year ending September, 1951 Canadian per capita foreign trade, including both exports and imports, was $536, whereas that of the U.S. for the same period was $173. Although the U.S. is the most important country in world trade, it cannot be said that international trade is of similar importance to the U.S. economy.

New Features for CNR Edmonton Hotel

Edmonton, February 26 — The traditional guest room is undergoing some radical changes in the new MacDonald Hotel, now under construction here. George F. Drummond, Montreal, chief architect for the CNR recently indicated that the hotel would experiment with studio-type rooms which provide sufficient living area so that seven people could be seated without crowding.

The space will be obtained by using a convertible sofa-bed in addition to regular sleeping facilities and by using one long multiple unit instead of a number of space-consuming furniture units. The new unit will have a desk-vanity section at one end, drawers in the middle and a baggage rack and service table at the other end.

There will be no ceiling lights, only table lamps and a portable stand fixture. As a result of eliminating the larger pieces of furniture, it is estimated there will be 50 per cent more living area than in existing guest accommodations. If the studio-type bedroom proves to be more popular than others it is planned to switch more rooms to this style.

Krilium Arrives

Farmers in Canada will soon be hearing a great deal about a new chemical substance called Krilium which has been originated by the Monsanto Chemical Company of the United States. It has been widely tested in the United States and is now being tested by a number of agricultural scientific institutions in Britain. Some tests have been made in Eastern Canada. This chemical substance improves the structure of soils so that the soil makes better use of the moisture and retains the moisture longer. Krilium also helps the soil to combat wind and moisture erosion, and furthermore improves the aeration of the soil; and so altogether tends to promote increased crops. It is especially valuable for soils which have become exhausted from long cropping, or where the nature of the soil is such that fields have not yet grown crops economically. At the moment the price of Krilium is too high for general field use, but it already can be used economically by horticulturists and greenhouse farmers. It is thought that the price may later come down so that the use of Krilium can be justified with general crop production.

NEW ELIZABETHAN ERA

By Lewis Milligan

Those of us who repeated the sudden news of the King's death did so with a catch in the throat. For he was indeed a gracious and kindly King. He bore the crown and sceptre with real dignity, but there was no pride or condescension in his attitude or spoken word. If there be any greatness in humility, King George the Sixth will be remembered as one of the greatest of British monarchs. He came to the Throne when it was shaken to its moral foundations, and when the very existence of the British nation and Empire was threatened by the rise of an arrogant and powerful demagogue in Germany. A wave of blind pacifism had spread over the country, and Churchills repeated warnings were as a voice crying in the wilderness. Prime Minister Baldwin was smoking his pipe of party treachery, and the only thing to his credit was his wise and masterly negotiations of the abdication of the wayward Edward VIII.

No more suitable successor to the Throne at that time could be imagined than the then Duke of York, with his modest and charming wife and their two lovely children. Here was a little Royal Family ready-made to step into the breach, and they filled it with a simplicity and homeliness that at once captivated the hearts of the people.

We have watched our new Queen grow up from infancy, when she lapsed her way into the hearts of the people by calling herself "Lizbeth." There may be nothing in a mere name, but in this case it can be a source of inspiration since it is associated with a great historic period. The Elizabethan era was in so many respects the most glorious in the history of Britain. Yet when Elizabeth succeeded to the Throne in 1558 England was in much the same position as it is today. As one writer described it: "Elizabeth succeeded to the throne at a time when shaky finances, military failures, and internal strife placed England's fortunes at a low ebb. At her death England had passed through one of the greatest and most widely prosperous in her history; a period that produced Shakespeare, Spenser, Bacon, Raleigh, Froisher, Drake and other notable personages, a period which saw the beginnings of English colonization and the birth of England as a naval power." Elizabeth's share in that great growth, however, is said to have been confined "to the good effects of her tremendous personal popularity and her faculty for choosing the ablest and most competent ministers."

The entire world has undergone a vast change since those days, and in that change British leadership and enterprise have played the greatest part. British monarchs and statesmen have not always acted wisely, and the great Elizabeth herself was very human. But they must all be judged by the times in which they lived. Progress has its recessions as well as its advances, and a recession may provide an incentive and impulse for a new advance. When Queen Victoria came to the Throne at the age of 18, Britain had been relaxing from the tension of the Napoleonic period with its threat of invasion and rivalry as a world power. Young as she was, Victoria was self-confident and she at once asserted her independence of her mother's domination. She followed the example of Elizabeth in her choice of advisers in statecraft.

Queen Elizabeth the Second begins her reign with much more experience and a far wider knowledge of and personal acquaintance with her people and their problems at home and abroad. Like her great namesake, she is tremendously popular, and in Prince Philip she has a manly and level-headed consort. Let us hope and pray that the histories of those two great reigns, when queens were on the Throne of England, will in the highest sense be repeated in the reign of Queen Elizabeth the Second. Long may she reign in peace.

Foot-and-Mouth Infection To be Stamped Out

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—Canada's thriving $2,000,000,000 livestock industry was struck a crippling blow Monday with announcement of an outbreak of dreaded foot-and-mouth disease in southern Sask.

The effects were immediate and widespread. The United States, Canada's main export outlet, banned imports of Canadian cattle, hogs, sheep and goats and meat from these animals. This halted an export trade which last year totalled $130,000,000. Canadian officials planned to ask the United States to ease restrictions, but there was doubt they would succeed.

Come To Standstill
Western cattle trade in Sask. and Manitoba virtually came to a standstill. Alberta cattle trade slowed.

Slaughter of infected herds in Saskatchewan will start Tuesday. Farmers will be compensated for their losses.

As federal and provincial forces mobilized to stem the first recorded outbreak of the disease, cattle traders predicted a drop in meat prices in Canada within the next few days.

In Ottawa, the Government took the view that there may not be much change in prices, but behind the scene there were misgivings as to whether prices could be maintained.

Edmonton Street Railway Team "Derailed" by Viking Tigers

(From The Viking News)

The Edmonton Street Railway motormen bogged down under a barrage of shots from the sharp-shooting Viking Tigers in a fast hockey game here last Saturday evening that sent the fans home singing the praises of the Tigers who are showing better form at each game. With a win a week ago over the City Telephone squad the locals ran the Street Railway gang ragged during the three periods of hectic hockey, although the score of 8 to 2 against the city lads doesn't tell the whole story. The game, according to the opinion of the fans, say it was the fastest display of the game held in the new arena. Each game sees a nice turnout of fans who come from miles around to view the national winter game.

The city teams find the locals no set up for an easy win. The motormen scored the first goal of the
